Corey,

This is your last chance. I am completing the Federal lawsuit against you. I will file it on Monday morning. You may communicate with me over the weekend if you wish, but if you force my hand, I will file this action against you.

The domain I transfered to you is valid for half year and it will bring you more traffic and could compensate most of your loses.
Also I can show you some other sites with CorbinFisher videos.

Okay, good.

Well here's the situation: You cost this company alone more than $20,000 in legal fees. That says nothing of what you cost them in lost sales. And, that says nothing about what you cost all my other clients.

The fact is, you are going to need to write a check. Give me a call, or present a reasonable offer, and we'll discuss whether it is adequate.

Ofcourse, I want to settle this case without you filing a lawsuit.

Well that's a shame. That is going to make settlement of this case a little more challenging.

So answer this question for me: Do you prefer to settle this case without us filing a lawsuit, or do you want us to file the lawsuit

and drag you through the court system?

It is up to you.

ok, we've got it.

So, next order of business. Would you like to settle the lawsuit before we file it against you? Or do you want to do it the hard way?
